

Graduate Elementary Greek

These classes mainly help graduate students prepare for the elementary Greek Language exam (see Masters Courses student handbooks on the Classics Faculty website). The classes will run for 3h/week starting in MT, through to the end of TT.

The classes will use Taylor's Greek to GCSE (2nd ed.) in 2 volumes, and those attending should have a copy of the books, either hard copy (second hand is fine of course, but it should be the 2nd edition) or electronic.

The classes will cover most of the course books and add some exam practice in TT. Students should expect to do regular homework (ca one hour for each class hour), and to do very regular memorisation (which will also be roughly one hour for each class hour); students will be expected to do some language work (with directions from the instructor) during the vacations between terms. Students will also take regular tests in classes, and will take a faculty test at the beginning of HT and at the beginning of TT.

Other members of the university not aiming for the exam are also welcome to attend the classes – the expectations regarding homework and workload are the same as above.

Those wishing to attend the classes should please email juliane.kerkhecker@classics.ox.ac.uk
